

Mark Heminger

copywriter · creative director · brand enhancer

The professional.

An ad vet of fifteen years, I help clients build brands and execute marketing initiatives. I create campaigns—traditional and new media—for businesses local and national. Ultimately, I get paid to crank out ideas, craft strong copy, and make my clients shine.

So far, so good. My clients are routinely shiny, and my work has been featured in Communication Arts Design Annual, Graphis Advertising Annual, Graphis Poster Annual, Print Regional Design Annual, and Best of Business Card Design. I've also picked up local, regional and national advertising awards.

Quick bites:

- Served as a managing partner, creative director, and copywriter/producer
- Seasoned strategist and brand builder
- Can oversee a project or play a defined role within
- Work directly with clients, ad agencies and marketing firms, as well as independent marketing professionals

The personal.

I treat all beings with respect, and stand up for the most vulnerable among us: animals, children, and mimes. I live in Ashland, Oregon, and grew up in Kansas City, Missouri.

On a side note, I once locked myself out of my house while fully nude.

The possible.

No matter the scope of the project, count on me to create solutions and finish what I start. For me, it's important to challenge myself, and those with whom I work, to achieve the uncommon. And to have some fun along the way.

Let's go.
